In statistics and related fields, a similarity measure or similarity function is a real-valued function that quantifies the similarity between two objects. Although no single definition of a similarity measure exists, usually such measures are in some sense the inverse of distance metrics: they take on large values for similar objects and either zero or a negative value for very dissimilar ...

Similarity measure - Wikipedia

Semantic similarity is a metric defined over a set of documents or terms, where the idea of distance between them is based on the likeness of their meaning or semantic content as opposed to similarity which can be estimated regarding their syntactical representation (e.g. their string format). These are mathematical tools used to estimate the strength of the semantic relationship between units ...

OTU's are used to categorize bacteria based on sequence similarity. In 16S metagenomics approaches, OTUs are cluster of similar sequence variants of the 16S rDNA marker gene sequence. Each of these cluster is intended to represent a taxonomic unit of a bacteria species or genus depending on the sequence similarity threshold.

A number of biases occur so often, in so many contexts, that cognitive scientists have given them names. (See "Common Biases," below.) Some, like the confirmation bias (which leads people to discount information that disagrees with their assumptions), have been critical factors in financial crises, including the Great Recession of 2007.
